

The First Flour Mill
Mouth of American Fork Canyon
Lehi Centennial History page 26

Towards the close of 1851, a flour mill was built at the mouth of American Fork Canyon by Lorenzo H. Hatch, Abram Hatch (Lehi Residents) and Nathan Packer.

It was the first mill in the north end of the county, but was unfortunately destroyed by fire the following year.

However, upon the advice of Willard Richards, it was immediately rebuilt by its enterprising owners, and for many years it served the people by grinding their corn.
